

-CALL FOR PAPERS-

Río Bravo Journal

The goal of the Río Bravo Journal is to publish scholarly articles on the borderlands between the United States and Mexico. This goal includes the promotion and the development of a better international understanding, to help in the design and implementation of further research and new discoveries concerning the relation between the United States and Mexico, to serve as a model for such investigations along the Rio Grande and to shed light on borderlands studies in general. We publish articles which emphasize the United States – Mexico border and prefer articles that appeal to readers in more than one discipline.

Author's Guidelines

- ◆ The journal is refereed.
- ◆ Articles are published in Spanish or English.
- ◆ The title of each article and the name of the author must appear on a separate page accompanying the manuscript. On this page include a 25 to 35 word abstract of the contents of the article. This summary should be in the opposite language of the article.
- ◆ Articles, reference, bibliographies, and notes should conform to MLA style. Manuscripts will be edited accordingly.
- ◆ Authors should include an additional copy of the manuscript on a 3 ½ inch computer diskette labeled with the author name and the word processing program which should be compatible with DOS or Windows operating systems (Microsoft Word is preferred).
- ◆ Authors are responsible for providing any tables, drawings, or illustrations (black and white only).
- ◆ All manuscripts should be double-spaced, including references and notes.
- ◆ Preferred length is between 15-30 pages.
- ◆ Submit two copies of the manuscript. Please, no simultaneous submissions. Each submission will be reviewed by an internal referee and an external referee from a corresponding discipline.
